R. M. Schindler (1887-1953) Rudolph Michael Schindler was one of the seminal master architects who defined Modern architecture in Southern California. Born in Vienna in 1887, Schindler was trained in art and engineering at the Imperial Technical Institute and the Vienna Academy of Arts. He absorbed the influences of the Austrian avant-garde at the turn of the twentieth century, under the tutelage of pioneers Otto Wagner and Adolf Loos.

Rudolph Michael Schindler (born Rudolf Michael Schlesinger (1887 Vienna - 1953 Los Angeles) was an Austrian-born American architect whose most important works were built in or near Los Angeles during the early to mid-twentieth century. Although he worked and trained with some of its foremost practitioners, he often is associated with the fringes of the modern movement in architecture. His inventive use of complex three-dimensional forms, warm materials, and striking colors, as well as Through photographs, drawings, and furniture designs, the exhibition reviewed the foundations laid by Otto Wagner, as well as the next generation responses to his work as personified by Adolf Loos and Josef Hoffmann. The exhibition was divided into four sections: the first focused on R.M. Schindler's (1887-1953) Vienna years from 1887-1914. As a student, Schindler took up civil engineering before attending Otto Wagner's special school of architecture at the Academy of Fine Arts.
